PREFACE

The Bible is studied today as it has never been studied before, and with a better knowledge of the original languages, antiquities, geography and history.

God declares through the mouth of the prophet, "My Word shall not return unto me void but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it." See Isa. 55: 11.

Wherever the Bible has gone and found lodgement in the hearts of the people of the nations, true civilization has followed. God intends and really expects us to understand his word. The Gospel is the hope of the world.

The material in this book has been successfully used by the author in his class work during the past twenty-five years, and is now brought out in bookform with the hope of reaching a larger number, and of doing a greater service.

BIBLICAL EXEGESIS

3. In preparing the historical and geographical questions, such as questions two and twenty-seven of Lesson I, carefully study, noting down on tablet as you read; and by the time you have read over the entire Bible lesson, your material will be in such shape that you can soon write out the answers to all the questions.

4. Make arrangements to read, search and study your Bible every day (Acts 17: 11), and your progress will be rapid, thorough and satisfactory.

5. Do not delay about beginning the study. Start at once, keep at it, and your lesson will be finished on time and in good shape.

6. Ask God's blessing upon your earnest efforts, memorize Luke 9: 62 and go forward.

8. Do not think about results now. Do your work faithfully and earnestly, and results will follow.

9. Very Important.—You have a daily occupation, and doubtless you are very busy, but you have undertaken a noble work; therefore arrange your time for study each day, and do not allow any ordinary thing to interfere with it.

LESSON XI. THE BOOKS OF JOEL AND AMOS.

Introduction: Joel was the son of Pethuel. As to his birthplace nothing is known. He probably belonged to the times of Uzziah.

BIBLICAL EXEGESIS

One of his most important prophecies is the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, which was fulfilled on the day of Pentecost.

Both Peter and Paul quoted from Joel. His book is divided into two parts:

1. A call to repentance. (Chapters 1-2: 17.)
2. A promise of blessing. (Chapters 2: 18; 3: 21.)

Amos belonged to Tekoa, a small town of Judea, about six miles south of Bethlehem. By occupation he was a herdsman and a dresser of sycamore trees. As he followed the flock, God called him to prophesy against the northern kingdom. He prophesied in the days of Uzziah and Jeroboam II. His book has a well defined plan and three divisions as follows.

3. Micah was a native of Moresheth, a small town on the Maritime Plain, about twenty miles southwest of Jerusalem. He flourished in the times of Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah, kings of Judah. His mission was to proclaim to Israel and Judah that judgment was at hand.

LESSON XIII. THE BOOKS OF NAHUM, HABAKKUK AND ZEPHANIAH.

Introduction: 1. Nahum was a native of Elkosh, a little village in Galilee. His book has but a single theme, the destruction of Nineveh. It is chiefly a sequel to the Book of Jonah. Jonah had already warned Nineveh of impending punishments, which God remitted on its repentance. Nahum now repeats the denunciations. The book forcibly brings before us God's moral government of the world.

2. When Habakkuk prophesied, the political and moral situation was a critical one. Two great world powers, Egypt and Babylon, contended for the vacant place of master of the earth; the issue was decided in favor of the Chaldeans at the battle of Carchemish, in 605 B. C. We have no definite information of the facts of the prophet's life, and with regard to the period of his prophecy there is great division of opinion. He probably wrote his prophecy after the great reformation in the days of Josiah.

3. Zephaniah, the son of Cushi, prophesied in the days of Josiah, King of Judah. He prophesied before the destruction of Nineveh, which took place B. C. 625. Two corrupt and idolatrous kings, Manasseh and Amon, preceded Josiah on the throne. Jerusalem became a hot-bed of evil. The prophet was a preacher of righteousness, and denounced the evils of his age in unsparing terms. He follows this up with judgments threatening Philistia, Moab, Ammon, Ethiopia and Nineveh, and concludes with a special reproof of Jerusalem and a promise of restoration to glory in the latter days.

BIBLICAL EXEGESIS

LESSON XIV. THE BOOKS OF HAGGAI, ZECHARIAH AND MALACHI.

Introduction: 1. Haggai, the first of the prophets after the Exile, was a cotemporary of Zerubabel and Joshua, who led those that returned from Babylon. He came at a grave crisis in the history of the chosen people. He was inspired by God to rouse the people to support Zerubabel and Joshua in building the temple, after the work had been suspended for fourteen years.

2. Zechariah stands eleventh in the order of the minor prophets. We know but little of his personal history. He was the son of Berechiah, and grandson of Iddo. He was a cotemporary of Haggai, and began to prophesy two months after him, and continued during two years, encouraging the Jews to prosecute the erection of the temple.

BIBLICAL EXEGESIS

3. Malachi prophesied after the restoration and at the time when Judah was a Persian province. The walls of Jerusalem had been rebuilt and the temple restored with its regular services. New Testament History

LESSON XV. THE SYNOPTIC GOSPELS, MATTHEW, MARK AND LUKE.

Introduction: We now come to the study of the New Testament. The Gospel appears there in four forms—Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. The first three books are called the “Synoptic Gospels,” because they, to a large extent, report the same incidents and discourses. They are mostly concerned with the ministry in Galilee.

1. Matthew. This Gospel was written by the apostle according to the testimony of all antiquity. His message was to the Jews. His aim was to show that Jesus Christ is the predicted Messiah. The genealogy of Christ is traced to King David. Matthew shows us that the Messianic kingdom was at hand.

2. Mark. This Gospel was written primarily for Gentiles. Its chief object seems to be to present the wondrous life of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, in the most vivid and life-like way. The evangelist scarcely refers to the Old Testament. The genealogy of Christ is not set forth, as it would not interest Gentile readers.

3. Luke. Luke was in all probability a Gentile, and a native of Antioch. He was a physician and the faithful companion of Paul. The preface to his Gospel (1: 1-4) shows the purpose of the writer. The genealogy of Christ is traced to Adam (3: 38, the son of God), thus linking Christ, not with the Jew, but the first man, the representative of humanity.

LESSON XVI. THE GOSPEL OF JOHN.

Introduction: The Apostle John wrote five of the New Testament books, the Fourth Gospel, Three Letters and Revelation. He was the son of Zebedee and Salome. John early became a disciple of John the Baptist and was one of the first to follow Jesus. He followed his master to the cross, and was there to receive his last words. There are several notices of John's work in the Acts.

His purpose in writing the Gospel is clearly stated (chapter 20:30-31): "And many other signs truly did Jesus in the presence of his disciples which are not written in this book. But these are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name." The great subject of this book is a Divine Being who became flesh and dwelt among men.

Aside from the account of the Passion, there are only a few facts which John relates in common with the other evangelists, and among them are the following: The feeding of the five thousand, the storm

LESSON XVII. THE ACTS OF APOSTLES.

Introduction: This book is described as a second "treatise" by Luke, and it commences with an inscription to the same Theophilus whom the Evangelist addresses in the Gospel. It is a record of what the Gospel accomplished in thirty years, from the resurrection of Christ to Paul's Roman imprisonment in A. D. 63. It is the story of the establishment, growth and development of the Christian church. It is a "Book of Origins," is the earliest sketch of the formation and spread of the Christian church. It tells of the first apostolic sermon, the first persecution, the first martyr, the first Gentile convert, and the first European church.

Christ during his stay upon earth after his resurrection, said to his disciples: "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Spirit is come upon you; and ye shall be my witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth." (Chapter 1:8.) This program of the book was literally carried out.

The agency and ministry of the Holy Spirit are especially prominent: He is referred to about seventy times. Peter and Paul are the two chief figures in the book; after the introduction, (chapter 1:1-14,) the first twelve chapters center in the work of Peter, and the remainder of the book in the work of Paul.

As several accounts of conversion are recorded therein, it has been called the "Book of Conversions."

The Pauline Epistles

LESSON XVIII. THE EPISTLE TO THE ROMANS.

Introduction: We begin now the study of the Epistolary writings. Out of the twenty-seven books which compose the New Testament, twenty-one are in the form of letters by five different authors.

As has been well said, "the foundation of Christianity is laid in a narrative, but the first and greatest development of Christian theology is laid in a collection of letters."

At the beginning of the Christian era Roman heathen writers speak of the large number of Jews dwelling in the city of Rome; they occupied a certain quarter inside the walls and were allowed special privileges. The church of Rome was probably founded by Jews and proselytes from Jerusalem, who had been converted by Peter on the day of Pentecost. (Acts 2: 10.)

The Roman letter was probably written at Corinth in the three months Paul spent there during his missionary journey. (See Acts 20: 1-3.)

LESSON XIX. I CORINTHIANS.

Corinth, when Paul visited it was the largest and most important city in Greece. Situated on the well known isthmus, the commerce of the world flowed through its two harbors.

The Corinthian church was founded by Paul during the year and a half which he spent in the city in the course of his second missionary journey (Acts, chapter 18), and it consisted partly of Jewish, but mainly of Gentile converts.

When Paul came to Corinth from Athens, he seems to have fully understood the character of the city; he determined not to know anything there "save Jesus Christ and Him crucified." (I Corinthians, 2: 1-2.) With such great evils to fight he needed a pure and simple gospel.

The subjects dealt with are:

LESSON XX. II CORINTHIANS.

Introduction: The second Epistle was called forth by the effect of the first. The occasion of writing it arose from the reports which Timothy and Titus had brought to Paul regarding the effect of the previous Epistle on the dispositions and relations of the Corinthian church; and one object of writing it was to regain their confidence as an apostle of the Lord, so that when he appeared among them in person it might not be in the spirit of chastisement, but for edification in love, his main purpose being to réestablish among them his apostolic character and reputation.

BIBLICAL EXEGESIS

It was written a few months subsequent to the first, in the same year, probably about the autumn of A. D. 57 or 58, a short time previous to the apostle's three months' stay in Achaia. (Acts 20: 3.)

The place whence it was written was clearly not Ephesus, but Macedonia (chapters 7: 5; 8: 1; 9: 2), whither the apostle went by way of Troas (chapter 2: 13), after waiting a short time in the latter place for the return of Titus (chapter 2: 13).

The Epistle has been divided into three sections:

1. The first, in which Paul sets forth his apostolic character and course of life, and his feelings in regard to the effect of the previous epistle (chapters 1-7).

2. The second, in which he gives directions about the collection for the poor saints in Judea (chapters 8-9).

LESSON XXI. THE GALATIAN LETTER.

Introduction: Galatia was a comparatively small district of Asia Minor, occupied by the descendants of the Gauls, who had poured down into Italy and Greece in the third century B. C. The people were first Barbarian, then mingling with the Greeks, became tempered by Greek civilization, and were finally subjugated by the Romans, B. C. 189. Many Jews had also settled in this region for trading purposes, and the inhabitants became a mixture of Gauls, Greeks, Romans and Hebrews.

After the apostolic conference at Antioch (Acts 15), Paul started on a second missionary tour. In the course of his journey he passed through Galatia A. D. 52 (Acts, 16: 1). Luke tells us nothing of the missionary work of the great apostle in this region. From Gal., 4: 13-16, we learn that Paul was taken sick, and while too ill to travel he yet managed to preach the Gospel. The Word was received with great enthusiasm. (Gal. 4: 14-15.) The Galatians had a second visit from the apostle in A. D. 55, during his third missionary journey. He seems to have found it necessary at that time to strengthen the disciples. (Acts, 18: 23.) The particular names of the churches to which this Epistle is addressed are not mentioned. (Gal., 1: 2.)

The converts at first did well, but soon Judaizing teachers found their way into the young Gentile churches. They claimed that the Jewish law was binding upon Christians. They insisted on the rite of circumcision. The authority of Paul and the Gospel which he preached were disparaged. It was a great controversy, and Paul proved himself equal to it. In the first and second chapters he vindicates his apostolic authority. The third and fourth chapters are a vindication of his doctrine, while the fifth and sixth chapters are hortatory, or practical.

It is possible that the Galatian letter was sent from Corinth, where Paul spent part of the winter of A. D. 57-58.

LESSON XXII. THE EPHESIAN LETTER.

Introduction: Next to Rome Ephesus was the most important city visited by the apostle. It was to Asia what Corinth was to Greece, the great port to which flowed the commerce of the east and west. It was settled mainly by colonists from Athens, but Asiatic elements of race and thought were not lacking in the population. The inhabitants were noted for their licentious and luxurious life. It was a great commercial, political and religious center.

The great temple of Diana, which was one of the seven wonders of the ancient world, stood outside the city walls and faced the east. It was built of marble. The dimensions were 324 feet long, by 164 feet wide. The time spent in building it was 220 years.

Paul first came to Ephesus when he was returning from his second missionary journey. (Acts 18: 18-21.) He brought with him Aquila and Priscilla, whom he left there when he departed. His stay was short, but a favorable impression was made, as he was asked to remain and urged to return. Apollos visited Ephesus while Paul was away, (Acts 18: 24-28; 19: 1), and passed on to Corinth. The apostle again stopped at Ephesus during his third missionary tour, and this time he remained three years. (Acts 20: 31.) During this very successful period of the apostle's labors the influence of the Gospel was spread throughout Asia.

For further history of Paul's relations with Ephesus, read Acts 19 and 20, in full.

The Epistle is divided as follows:

LESSON XXIII. THE PHILIPPIAN LETTER.

Introduction: The church of Philippi was the first planted by Paul on the continent of Europe, and occurred about A. D. 52. The apostle's associates in the work at that time were Silas, Luke and Timothy. (Acts 16.)

This city originally belonged to Thrace, but in 358 B. C., it was seized by King Philip of Macedon (father of Alexander the Great), and made the most easterly city of his kingdom. Though founded by Philip of Macedon, it was at this time a Roman colony, having as such been established by Augustus Cæsar, and its inhabitants were Roman citizens, jealous of their rights.

The sixteenth chapter of Acts contains a full and graphic account of the founding of the Philippian church during the second journey of the apostle. Paul was divinely led over into Europe by a direct call of the Holy Spirit. (Acts 16: 6-12.)

BIBLICAL EXEGESIS

The starting point of the preaching was from a Jewish center, not in a synagogue, but outside the city "by a river side where prayer was wont to be made." Lydia, "a seller of purple of the city of Thyatira," was the first convert; she opened her house to ministers of the Gospel.

The casting out a spirit of divination from an unfortunate girl led to the imprisonment of Paul and Silas, and finally to the conversion of the jailer and his household.

The occasion of Paul's writing this letter was to acknowledge a message and a gift which the Philippians had sent to him by the hands of Epaphroditus; and one main object of it was to testify his joy over their show of affection, to stir up in them the like gladness of the heart, and to make his joy more complete.

This letter was written from Rome during Paul's first imprisonment. (See Acts 28: 30-31; Philippians 1: 7-13; 4: 22.)

LESSON XXIV. THE COLOSSIAN LETTER.

Introduction: This letter was written in Rome during Paul's first imprisonment, about A. D. 63, and sent to Colossae, together with the Epistles to the Ephesians and Philemon, by the hands of Tychicus, who was probably a native of Ephesus, and Onesimus, a converted Colossian who had run away from his master.

The city of Colossae, situated in a valley of Phrygia, on the River Lycus, was in Paul's time of comparatively little importance. There were two very important cities, Hierapolis and Laodicea, situated about twelve or fifteen miles below it. In all these places there were Christian churches. We have no account of Paul visiting these cities or doing any work in them. (Chapter 2: 1.) The church at Colossae was nevertheless a Pauline church, because planted by an esteemed fellow-laborer of Paul, and in whose prosperity, therefore, Paul took a special interest.

BIBLICAL EXEGESIS

The occasion of Paul's writing the Epistle was the report which he had received from Epaphras concerning the condition of the Colossian church and the dangers that threatened it; and the object he had in writing it was to confirm its members in the faith they had received and to guard them against certain errors in doctrine and practice which had appeared among them, and which, if indulged in, would be sure to corrupt and subvert the church. (See Col. 1: 7, and 4: 12.)

The chief thought in this letter is "the dignity and sole sufficiency of Jesus Christ as the mediator and head of all creation and of the church." (Chapter 1: 14-18.)

LESSON XXV. I AND II THESSALONIANS.

Introduction: Thessalonica was situated at the head of the Thermaic gulf, and its original name was Therma. Cassander, the son of Antipater, rebuilt and enlarged Therma and named it after his wife, Thessalonica, the sister of Alexander the Great. The name ever since, under various slight modifications has been continuous, and the city itself has never ceased to be eminent. It came under Roman rule 168 B. C., and in 42 B. C. was declared a free Roman city. In Paul's time it was a great commercial center. The inhabitants were Jews, Greeks and Romans. It is one of the few ancient cities that has retained its importance up to the present time. Its present population is more than 70,000. Its modern name is Salonika.

By reading Acts 17: 1-13, we learn that the apostle on his second missionary journey left Philippi and went westward till he came to Thessalonica. Here he found the Jews sufficiently numerous and influential to possess a synagogue. He preached three Sabbath days and began a work which has lasted to the present time. But the "Jews which believed not" made a tumult and Paul departed to Berea. One of the Thessalonian members, Aristarchus, shared Paul's imprisonment at Rome. (Col. 4: 10.)

These letters are specially interesting and important as the earliest extant writings of Paul. They were written about 53 A. D., from Corinth. The second letter was written a few months after the first.

LESSON XXVI. I AND II TIMOTHY, TITUS AND PHILEMON.

Introduction: The first and second letters to Timothy and Titus are very similar in thought and style. They add not a little to what we know of Paul's life and finish a history which would have otherwise been incomplete.

In these letters the apostle deals with practical themes. The character of church officers is fully brought out. (See I Tim. 3: 1-13; Titus 1: 7-16.) Timothy and Titus are directed how they should bear themselves toward the church members and what they should teach. (See I Tim. 5; Titus 2.) Instruction is given in regard to public worship and persons for whom prayer should be offered. (I Tim. 2.) It is shown that a diligent study of the Scriptures and fervent preaching of the word form a most effective bulwark against all forms of evil. (See II Tim. 3 and 4.)

The Epistle to Philemon is the only strictly private letter of Paul which has been preserved. All the other Epistles are either church or pastoral letters of authoritative direction.

The occasion of writing the Epistle to Philemon was the return to Philemon of Onesimus, a slave who had deserted his master, gone off with some of his property and taken refuge in Rome, but who had been converted by Paul.

BIBLICAL EXEGESIS

LESSON XXVII. THE HEBREW LETTER.

Introduction: We know nothing of the Hebrews to whom this Epistle was addressed, except what we learn from the Epistle itself. This much is certain: They were Jewish Christians in danger of apostasy, but no particular church to which they belonged is mentioned.

As they stood in danger of making shipwreck of their faith in Christ, they had great need of the exhortation to hold fast their confidence steadfast unto the end. Chapter 3:14.) Therefore the object of writing the letter was to exhort and encourage them to endure whatever persecution and reproach they might have to face. The writer shows once for all the supremacy of Christ over prophets, angels, Moses and the old covenant; in fact the superiority of Christianity to Judaism in every particular. It is declared that the law made nothing perfect, and that it was merely the shadow of which Christ is the reality. In the eleventh and twelfth chapters there is a magnificent showing of the faith of the old covenant worthies who believed in God and who walked by faith and not by sight.

While there has been much discussion as to the authorship of this letter, yet the preponderance of the evidence seems to favor Paul as being its author. The book was certainly written before the destruction of Jerusalem in A. D. 70; the temple is referred to as still in existence and the sacrifices as being offered. (Read chapters 9-10.)

The General Epistles

LESSON XXVIII. THE EPISTLE OF JAMES.

Introduction: The seven letters which follow Hebrews have been denominated "General," or "Catholic" Epistles, as pertaining to the whole church, as being addressed not to any special local church or community, but generally to all.

The author of this first of the "General Epistles" was "James, the Lord's brother" (Gal. 1: 19), who was probably an elder in the Jerusalem church (Acts 15: 13.) He deals in his Epistle with practical themes. There is no mention of Jewish ordinances. The references to Christ are very marked: His equality with God (chapter 1: 1); the new birth (chapter 1: 18); His glory (chapter 2: 1); His authority (chapter 5: 10), and His coming to judgment (chapter 5: 7). The rule of life is the gospel law of liberty. (Chapter 2: 12.)

We find warnings against a dead faith, uncharitable judgment and undue respect for the rich. There are striking definitions of pure religion (chapter 1: 27) and true wisdom (chapter 3: 17).

4. The power of temptations.
5. Doers of the Word and not hearers only.

LESSON XXIX. I AND II PETER AND JUDE.

Peter, a fisherman of Bethsaida (Matt. 16: 16-17, and Jno. 1: 41-42), was one of the foremost of the apostles to whom was given the keys of the kingdom. He opened the door of the church to three thousand on the day of Pentecost (Acts 2: 41), and admitted the first Gentile family by baptism into the same fold (Acts 10: 4-48).

BIBLICAL EXEGESIS

1. I Peter. The Divine authenticity of this book stands unquestioned. It was written to Christians who were passing through a period of trial and suffering for their religion. They were falsely accused as evil doers. (Chapter 2: 12; 3: 16; 4: 4.) The apostle advised them how to bear evil for Christ's sake, and he reminded them how that Christ being reviled, reviled not again.

2. II Peter. In this letter the apostle is looking forward to his death. (Chapter 1: 14.) As one of the three who was with the Savior on the Mountain of Transfiguration, he could refer to that event with confidence. (Chapter 1: 17-18.) He was acquainted with Paul's writings. (Chapter 3: 15-16.)

The occasion of this letter was a new danger to the churches. False teachers had entered them and were doing great harm. (Chapter 2.)

3. The Epistle of Jude. There is a marked resemblance in a number of points between this Epistle and II Peter. The writer is Jude, the brother of James. (Matt. 13: 55; Mark 6: 3.) The place and time of writing is uncertain. The object and occasion of the Epistle are to be found by reading verses 3 and 4.

LESSON XXX. I, II AND III JOHN.

1. I John. The writer of the Epistle is the same as the author of the fourth Gospel. In the Epistle reference is made to the Gospel, which it presupposes as already familiar to and fresh in the minds of its readers. The evidence for its genuineness, therefore, is practically the same as that for the Gospel. The Epistle was written during the latter part of the apostle's life, and probably from Ephesus.

The Epistle is addressed to no particular church and seems to be a general one intended for a number of churches for a certain specific purpose. Read chapters 2: 18-19; 4: 3; 5: 21.

As to the object in writing it, see chapters 1: 1-4; 5: 1-4; 5: 13.

2. II John. This letter contains only thirteen verses. It contains no direct information as to when or where it was written. The object in writing it was to warn against certain deceivers who were abroad at that time. (Verse 7.)

3. III John. This Epistle is addressed to Gaius. The occasion of the letter was the kindness and hospitality which Gaius had shown to some evangelists who had come to the church where he, it seems, was a member.

LESSON XXXI. THE BOOK OF REVELATION.

Introduction: The generally accepted opinion of the church in regard to this book is that it was written by John, the apostle, during his exile on the Isle of Patmos about A. D. 95. The author in four different places calls himself John. (See chapter 1: 1; 4: 4-9; 22: 8.

The word "Revelation" is the Latin equivalent of the Greek word "Apocalypse," by which this book is designated in the original, and so applied it means an unveiling, specially of the future, and that as regards the fortunes of the church in her relations to the powers of the world. A careful and thorough study of this book will repay any one well for the time and energy spent upon it.

It seems to be a fact that the visions of the book have found counterparts in the world's history. Commentators say: "The Beast", (chapter 13:1; 17:3) was the Roman empire; the seven heads were seven emperors; the woman, (chapter 17:3) was the city of Rome; the ten horns were imperial governors, (chapter 13:1; 17:3-12.)
